Inspired by the silver screen's golden age, the Calla™ II Suite's luxurious elements include 1940s substantial curves and the Art Deco era's sleek sophistication.

Forward Trend: Look for solid statements in style such as rich dark wood tones in exotic wenge and designs that transition from traditional to modern eras effortlessly. Great style should also mean top performance. The Veneto™ II water closet features the industry leading Champion® 4 technology.

Design Note: The Calla II Suite feels sumptuous because of the layered texture from the wood tones to the grass cloth wallpaper, and then to the mottled ceramic tile and mohair curtain. All the brown undertones create a serene space. Substantial design calms the soul.

The Époque™ Nouveau Suite features turn of the century sensibility married to today's modern loft. Both styles update one another and revive the tub's classic design into contemporary sculpture for the bath.

Forward Trend: The paintable tub exterior and claw feet are invitations to twist unique style into any room setting. By selecting calm grey undertones, the space takes on lazy hues of a late afternoon, perfect for contemplative bathing. Look for Porcher's high performing titanium enamel to keep tubs looking new.

Design Note: Patterned wallpaper couldn't be a hotter design trend right now. But don't overwhelm a room by using it on every wall. By painting out the French doors with the same color as the exterior wall, the space opens up to feature the wallpaper's pattern without feeling closed in.

The Époque™ Nouveau Suite II takes on Beacon Street by blending definitive architecture with modern accents. Reminiscent of past luxuries and beckoning future romance, this bathroom was laid out with calming symmetry.

Forward Trend: Take traditional lines into the future with selective splashes of white. The clean, contrasting tone freshens up any room and even helps to update grandma's Victorian chairs. The spacious claw foot is the focal point and the custom painted feet make the tub visually stand at attention.

Design Note: Find anyplace where you can bring the outside in. The best place for tub is near a window or door for daydream bathing and soaking under the stars.

The gorgeous Slate Suite is inspired by the strength and simplicity of exotic woods. Grounded in grey tones, this line of furniture is the modern way to include organic materials in bathroom design.

Forward Trend: The latest evolution in wood furniture is the grey wash finish. These wood tones feel substantial because they are neutral and can blend into masculine spaces with ease. Porcher's furniture is constructed with the highest quality including multiple finish coats layered on by hand.

Design Note: A huge thrust in design right now is the infusion of organic elements into room settings. Here, a fairly simple bathroom layout is updated by contrasting wall color with the modern wallpaper weighted with slate flooring. It all works together because the entire color palette is monochromatic.

The Architect Charles Stinson inspired the Epic™ Suite's clear integrity. Stinson's own designs hold spatial attention to one design element at a time. Porcher's latest in European design deserves no less.

Forward Trend: Choose one fixture to anchor the space such as the European designed Epic Round Basin. The entire flow of the room works around the sink area as the visual focal point. Functional flow of a bathroom is the hidden success in any design.

Design Note: Instead of depending on tile for every surface, consider a solid surface material such as Formica for the walls. Large sheets of Chesapeake Shell Solid Surface were used under the windows. This is a great way to simplify possible tile grid patterns.

The Tetsu™ Suite was inspired by an Asian spa design where every line and element has purpose and thought. Each area features the element of water for a purely Zen experience.

Forward Trend: Floating furniture is a great way to give the illusion of more space. The Testu Collection is truly a modern convenience because of the extra counter space and storage. The chocolate wenge wood adds warmth and luxury.

Design Note: The bathroom's design takes a twist on an old theme; fire and ice make water. The deep blue tones of the Cambria tub deck and wall feel icy. The real wood-burning fireplace is hot and then there's the beautiful chromatherapy blue water waiting in the tub.

Ever visit a home and find the powder room such a surprise that you want to see the rest of the bathrooms? Instead of small dark rooms tucked away, we were inspired by the penthouse view!

Forward Trend: These substantial sinks are all about shape and form. Each Clarity Stone vessel is crafted from a single piece of marble or granite that takes on a sculptural quality. It's all about the water tumbling into the stone basin like a European fountain.

Design Note: We chose to mix the Clarity Stone Sink with a sleek Cambria top and wood laminate wall. By blending different finishes, we enhance each one more than they would have been on their own. In design, it's the sum of the parts that counts.

Hiking the river bluffs early in the spring, if you are lucky enough, you'll catch the snowmelt rushing through the dark slate flats. Imagine scooping up a handful of cold clear water in your hands as this bathroom comes to life.

Forward Trend: Each of the dark grey Slate sinks is crafted from Italian volcanic rock, extremely durable and surprisingly soft feel. Dramatic against knotted wood, any of the five sink shapes bring a primitive magnificence to interior design.

Design Note: Place a sink on something odd like a credenza table made of Monkey wood or a Taiwanese reclaimed tree trunk. Reclaimed wood is so popular there isn't a reason to at least accessorize with it. Look for green interior elements; they help us stay connected to nature.

Before there was indoor plumbing, there were Roman aqueducts. These water vessels were formed from stone and were positioned to take advantage of water's flow and the earth's gravity. We borrowed that sensibility and played on the physics for the Equility™ Basins.

Forward Trend: Vessels are popular. These newly designed low profile sinks are set into the countertop to create a high functioning area. By simplifying the countertop, the focus is on the sink and running your hands through the streaming water.

Design Note: The stacked countertop highlights the quick smooth edge of the sink. The crystal-encrusted wallpaper brings a diamond sparkle to the entire wall. Rustic beauty is its own genre.

The Epic™ Basin is blessed with compelling design. The angles are geometrically precise to create neat, perfectly cropped spaces to rest your bathing accoutrements. Each clean line triangulates another point of interest.

Forward Trend: Another vessel innovation, the sink actually appears to reach forward to help you wash. Ergonomically designed, the Epic Basin is a very smart shape for washing your face, hands and anything a sink bath could offer.

Design Note: A sense of scale is a very important design element that can date a room right when you walk in. Even if you have a small space, simplify the number of fixtures and weigh the treatments of those you have left. Don't just simplify; edit your designs carefully.

There's no excuse not to update those 70s galley bathrooms anymore. Take the best of the 1970s like the stacked stonework and windowscapes and turn it into a functional spa. Who knew classic grey men's suiting could inspire a remodel?

Forward Trend: Porcher designs every bathtub with spacious comfort in mind. Sit in any bathtub before you buy it and you'll see. Each tub is specially designed to fit the human form and encourage relaxation.

Design Note: Oh so very Calvin Klein in color palette but notice how the white toilet and table feel like accent pieces? That's because they accent the largest element in the room, the racing track oval bathtub. Grey is the new black.

If you take a pre-war apartment and strip it of its dark finishes but keep all the fixtures and turnings, you'd have the Savina™ Suite. Carefully chosen traditional design elements from the past have been brought to the future for safekeeping.

Forward Trend: High key color contrasts between the burled oak laminate and the Queen Anne white china Savina Console are the trick here. By mixing the contemporary whites with the wood tones the outcome feels modern. Look for Porcher's traditional fine fire clay for the real deal in today's consoles and vanities.

Design Note: Contrast style as well as color by mixing different eras. The console and the mirror are inspired by the 1910s and the wood laminate by the 1950s. By blending the two periods, the space takes on its own unique personality for today.
